

TREES

TREES is the Training Center for Tropical Resources and Ecosystems Sustainability, the training arm of the College of Forestry and Natural Resources, University of the Philippines Los Baños.

Its mission is to enhance the knowledge, skills, and attitudes of individuals promoting tropical resources development and ecosystem sustainability through training and continuing education programs.

Its vision is to become a dynamic and enterprising training institution that leads and excels in the continuing education of individuals and organizations committed to tropical resources development and ecosystem sustainability.

From 1998 up to the present, TREES has implemented hundreds of training projects, both in classroom and online, which were participated in by thousands of foresters and allied professionals from all over the country and even abroad.

In 2018, TREES was granted accreditation by the Professional Regulation Commission, making it the first provider of Continuing Professional Development programs for forestry professionals.

TREES

TREES also manages a hostel at the UPLB campus. The facility is nestled in the Mount Makiling Forest Reserve, enabling a more dynamic and conducive environment for training on tropical resources and ecosystem sustainability.

TREES has been connecting people to forests and nature for the past

25 YEARS

And it is committed to do so in the next years to come.
